The Ninth Annual Bach Festival approaches its climax, the B Minor Mass, Sunday afternoon and evening at Sunset Auditorium, interior pictured above.

Four performances still remain, the organ recital at All Saints' Church this afternoon from 3 to 4 p.m., Saturday evening's performance, soloists, chorus and orchestra at Sunset, and Sunday's two performances of the magnificent B Minor Mass. Reviews of earlier performances are to be found in this issue. Reviews of the weekend performances (including that of Thursday, July 25) will appear in the August 2 issue of the Pine Cone.

Robert Young Buys Olsen Ranch In Cachuaga Region

Robert Young, movie star, has purchased the 160-acre Olsen ranch in the Cachuaga district, it was revealed this week by Herbert Brownell of Carmel Valley who handled the transaction. Price involved was not disclosed.

Young intends to make certain improvements on the ranch, including the construction of a new home on the property. He plans, with Mrs. Young, and their four children (all girls) to spend vacations here. He admitted that ever since he first saw this part of California a number of years ago that he planned some day to own a home here. Aside from vacationing on the ranch between picture committments, Young says that when he retires, in the far distant future, he will live on the ranch all-year-round.

The new owner plans to raise both cattle and horses on the ranch. Mr. and Mrs. Mark Wilmot have been retained as caretakers.

The Editor's Column

10th and 11th Street Resistance

Street Superintendent William Askew is disappointed in Carmel property owners. Oh, yes, a few of them took up the city's offer: You pay for the material and we'll furnish the labor and equipment to improve your street. The trouble is, the wrong people rose to the bait, says Askew. It's the people on Tenth and Eleventh the street department is angling for, and they aren't having any. Unfortunately, they are the people who need street improvement most.

Askew can't understand it. All the cost to the property owners is 25 cents a front foot, $10 for the average 40 foot lot. You'd think the canny house wife would figure she'd save $10 a half dozen times over in cleaning bills, labor, and wear and tear on her drapes, upholstery and rugs, in reduction of dust that now swirls into her house with every passing car.

If street improvement involved leveling, paving, curbing, cutting down trees, straightening out picturesque twists and turns, the property owners' reluctance would be understood, but the work the street department does is strictly in harmony with the Carmel Compromise. Oil and gravel is laid without disturbing the natural attractions of the landscape. And the dust is banished.

It should be worth $10 to any property owner. —Wilma Cook.

Library Staff To Have Pay Up of $1750

The three percent increase in tax rate for the Ralph Harrison Memorial Library, granted at the last council meeting, will swell the libraries revenue by $2,019, according to figures released by City Clerk Peter Mawdsley yesterday.

In addition, the city has undertaken the upkeep of the library grounds, relieving the library of $480 per year for gardener's salary.

Under these circumstances, the library will be able to meet its proposed budget for 1947 of $15,290. Its budget for 1946 was $12,784, and it ended the year with a deficit of $477.

The largest increase in the estimated budget is for salary raises of $1750 for the library staff. Payroll for 1946 was $7,610, for 1947 an estimated $9,369. Second largest increase is $400 for book purchase, budgeted at $1,600 for last year, $2,000 for this.

In their written report, accompanying the estimated budget, the library trustees commented:

"The library staff is both understaffed and under-paid compared with reliable A. L. A. records, and it will require an upward adjustment if we are to escape the too-frequent turnover and the attendant evils of training green help, due to our too-low salary figures.

"We have been robbing our book purchase allotment to meet our salary account, and $400 must be added to our book purchase account to maintain a proper standard of book equipment."

In support for their plea for more funds, the trustees pointed out that more money is needed to carry on the increased service due to library growth from 1940-46.

Circulation has jumped from 67,608 to 83,988, an increase of 24 per cent, greater than Pacific Grove's or Monterey's Book collection shows an increase of 22 per cent, registration has grown from 3,187 to 4,026, an increase of 26 per cent, with a corresponding in-

Again Mr. Ligeti Loses His Shirt

It may seem a far cry from two wars to the Bach Festival, but to Desire Ligeti, Hungarian basso, the results are similar.

Mr. Ligeti escaped from the Nazis in the early part of the European war, but consequently lost all of his belongings in his Budapest home.

Later, he accepted a teaching post at the University of Manila, and once again lost his personal belongings during the sacking of the city by the Japanese.

Last Sunday, Mr. Ligeti drew up in front of Pine Inn and went inside to register. When he returned with the bus boy to carry his bags in, the car had vanished, and up until the time the Pine Cone went to press it had not been recovered.

In the car were all of his clothes, a portable typewriter, music scores, and most important of all, his immigration papers.

The car, fortunately, was recovered Wednesday night in back of Sunset School, and apparently nothing had been stolen.

Mr. Ligeti is singing in several of the Bach Festival concerts.

GETTING AROUND THE PENINSULA

WITH BETH

With only the sardines in a co-operative mood, the August 1 opening of the 1946-47 fishing season seems destined to be postponed. Fishermen have rejected the boat owners' proposals that another half share be paid each boat and that they (the fishermen) lend more assistance in defraying cost of operation. Then too, cannery workers, through the AFL, are seeking higher wages for the approaching season. But, as in past seasons, a settlement will be reached eventually, and the million dollar industry will be off again to another successful period of operation.

Whether the Navy will acquire Del Monte for use as a "West Coast Annapolis" is still very much up in the air. Another sub-committee will visit the site, along with others on the Coast, for another study of the situation. Unfortunately, there are no California representatives on this new committee. That the Navy itself wants the site is already known, but whether the proposed plan will ever become an eventuality is at present in the laps of the gods.

Carmel is doing itself proud this week for Bach Festival visitors. For not only are they enjoying the finest Festival in history, the town cooperated with the Weather Man to start off the week with sunshine. Festival visitors are spending their days on the beach acquiring a suntan, and the evenings at Sunset Auditorium listening to the gorgeous and inspiring music. And so Bach and blisters are enjoying a great get-together this week.

Playing errorless ball, the Carmel Pine Cone Softball Team beat down the league-leading team of Rasmussen's Sport Shop at Pacific Grove last Friday night 6 to 0 and pushed to second place in the PG circuit, only one game away from the top.

With the battery of Ky Miyamoto on the mound and Joe Nicholson behind the plate, the local team almost established a record for themselves by hanging up a no-hit, no-run, no-errors ball game, but the chance was spoiled when Rasmussen's second baseman Perez got the only hit in the last of the sixth inning.

The first three innings were scoreless as both teams played tight ball. Then in the first of the fourth inning, Fought hit, Miyamoto hit, Kelsey walked, Butts got on and Nicholson hit. Two runs came in for the Pine Cone. Butts scored in the sixth. Stetson came through with a home run in the seventh and Fought and Kelsey both scored.

Untired by their league victory the night before, The Carmel Pine Cone Softball Team won an exhibition game with the highly touted Moose Saturday night at Sunset field 3 to1.

Both teams collected six hits but it was for the Pine Cone to pull the game out of the 1 to 1 deadlock in the sixth inning, when Huffman hit to score Joe Nicholson. Taylor added the remaining run when he came to bat in the seventh inning and knocked out a home run.

H. Lester and Brooks formed the battery for the visitors and "Strong Man" Ky Miyamoto pitched for the second night in a row with Huffman catching for the Carmel team.

The Firemen had little trouble extinguishing the Police on Wednesday of last week, July 17, when the volunteer men of the bucket brigade walked all over the volunteer men of law and order to a score of 16 to 6 beneath the lights at Sunset diamond.

Ken Roberts and Fred Warren formed the battery for the victorious Firemen while I. Kelsey and De Amaral performed the pitching and catching team for the Police.

EAGLES DEFAULT TO P.C.

Pine Cone played only an exhibition game Tuesday night, when the local softball team won by default from the Eagles at Pacific Grove.

The Eagles couldn't produce enough players at game time but, with the aid of the Pine Cone bench filled out nine men to give the fans a contest to watch. Final score 9-0.

The victory gave the local team six wins to two losses in the Pacific Grove League.

RAIN-CHECK RESULTS
By F. Shea

George L. Coleman and Dr. Charles Crocker were the winners of the weekly Rain-Check golf tournament at the Cypress Point Club last Saturday, finishing 7 up in the match-play-against-par contest. Coleman, 2 handicap, shot 74, while Crocker, 9 handicap, scored 79. This marked the third straight win for Crocker.

In second place were Charles M. Daniels and Wheeler Farish, 6 up.

Other players: Walter E. Egan and Harry C. Hunt, 4 up; Mrs H. C. Hunt and C. Pardee Erdman, 4 up; Paul S. Winslow and Stuart Haldorn, 3 up; Mrs. George Coleman and C. Pardee Erdman, 2 up; Mrs. Frances A. Elkins and Harrison Godwin, 1 up.

An odd number of players necessitated the giving of two partners to one person, and his acting as two individuals in the tourney.

P. C. Jrs. ON TOP

The Junior Edition of the Carmel Pine Cone Softball Team repeated their heavy ballplaying Monday night at Sunset Field when they beat the Pacific Grovites 11 to 2.

The Pine Cone, Jrs, who are rewarded for their nightly practice by leading the local Teen-Age league, had little trouble in vanquishing the visiting lads from P. G., who allowed eleven runs from five hits.

Ward Gilbert pitched the winning game besides contributing one run and Art Harber, who did the catching, scored two runs for the Pine Cone, Jrs. Gasperson and Hicks formed the battery for Pacific Grove.

TENNIS FINALS SAT.—SUN.

Local tennis favorites were repeating their performances in the recent Monterey Peninsula tournament this week as they climbed toward the finals in the Carmel Tennis Tournament. Finals of the tournament, sponsored by the Junior Tennis Club, will be played off Saturday and Sunday on the Carmel City Courts and high school courts.

Principal attraction of the weekend play will be the men's singles scheduled for Sunday at 10:00 a.m. on the city courts. According to Barbara Josselyn, tournament publicity director, the match will probably be between George Gossler and Spencer Kern. Kern must first take care of John Dietrich in the semi-finals at 11:00 on Saturday and George Gossler will be matched against the winner of the Otto Winklehaus-Bill Eastman game at 5:00 p.m. on Saturday.

Bill Burns and Dick Shumann are expected to give George Gossler and Bill Eastman a hard match in the men's doubles semi-finals Friday at 3:30 p.m. and the winners will probably go against Spencer Kern-Huston Hannon at noon Sunday.

Women's finals will be played Sunday at 1:00 p.m. In the semi-finals last Saturday, Jackie Work upset Sheliah Moore 6-4, 6-4 but was later downed by Mary Wilhoit 6-2, 7-9, 9-7.

All the matches of the Senior Division will be played on the city courts located in Carmel Woods.

Schedule for the Junior Division matches which are played on the high school courts is as follows: boys' finals at 11:00 on Sunday, junior girls' finals at 1:00 on Saturday, and girls' finals at 12:00 on Saturday.

Sullivan's Handel, The Madrigals, Piano Concerto, Highlights Of Second Bach Festival Concert

BY RACHEL MORTON

The second concert of the Bach Festival on Tuesday evening got off to a rather weak start with the Concerto Grosso in D minor by Vivaldi, but the program steadily increased in interest and vitality, and at the end the audience was stamping its feet in approval.

Noel Sullivan sang two arias by Handel. The first, Dove Sei, from Bertarido, was sung with deep feeling. The second Si, Tra'i Ceppi, from Berenice, had a fine spirited rendition. It is something for a deep bass voice to manage long runs and a bravura style with easy flow and clarity. Mr. Sullivan has this gift; he has deep conviction besides, which gives meaning to his interpretations. He was enthusiastically received.

The concerto for cello and orchestra in B Flat major by Boccherini was played by William Harry. This young man is a serious musician with an excellent technique. If his tone is small, it will doubtless develop with the years and experience. After the intermission there was some beautiful madrigal singing. We are endebted to Mr. Usigli for bringing us this rarely heard form of vocal music. The ensemble of singers was composed of Margaret Christman, Margarete Ries, Muriel Rogers, Thomas Clark, James White and Carl Bensberg. The singers, singing sometimes unaccompanied, had fine tone quality, nice nuance and splendid spirit.

Whether or not the orchestra was inspired by Lillian Steuber's playing I do not know, but certainly their best playing of the evening was done in the piano Concerto in E flat major by Mozart. It was quite a professional job.

Miss Steuber played with brilliance and assurance and well merited the ovation given her.

Mr. Usgli held his groups together in a musicianly manner and shared deservedly the applause generously given.

MAJ. WHITE, BRIDE, HERE

Major William Gale White, war hero who wears nine clusters to his Purple Heart, is in town for two weeks with his bride of a month, the former Miss D'Arcy Parrott. Their marriage took place at Camp Campbell, Kentucky.

While here, Major and Mrs. White are visiting Major White's mother, Mrs. Sarah E. White, at her home on Camino Real.

Major White, who grew up in Carmel, enlisted in the Army in September, 1941, and since that time advanced himself steadily to his present rank. He participated in every major campaign in the European theater, and aside from being wounded nine times, he has been awarded just about every important medal the Army has to offer. He will remain here for two weeks before leaving for another assignment, probably in the Paific area.

Rio Has Black Magic, Housing Problems, Mrs. Wheeler Writes

"You cannot imagine what a wild time we have had getting settled here. To begin with, the housing situation in Rio is as bad as it is anywhere in the States. The city is buttressed with skyscrapers, but trying to get an apartment in one of them is only slightly less difficult than it would be to break into the Inner Sanctuary of a Mormon temple," writes Mrs. C. Julian Wheeler from Rio de Janeiro to Carmel friends. She spent more than two years of the war in Carmel while her husband served in the Navy in the Pacific area. Their two daughters, Doanda and Jocqueline, attended Sunset and Carmel High School. Following the war Captain Wheeler was loaned by the U. S. Navy Department to the Brazilian Government as superintendent of that country's Naval Academy, and the family went to South America in February. "We were at the Hotel Gloria for two months and over before we finally succeeded in getting into our apartment. It was well worth the delay, however, because I really think that we have one of the most attractive apartments in the city. It is in one of the very nicest buildings; in fact we have four embassies as our co-tenants. We overlook the fabulously beautiful bay of Guanabara and the view from our long balcony is something not even to be imagined in a dream. We look out from the breakfast table over what amounts to an inland sea; a broad expanse of blue water curving in and out among precipitous, jungle-clad green islands. Julian and I are both convinced that Rio is the most beautiful place in the world, and we have seen a good many lovely spots between us.

"On the surface this is a most sophisticated modern city of huge apartment houses and impressive office buildings with white marble facades, but under the thin surface it is one of the most primitive places that we have ever lived in. On the hills that rise steeply behind almost every big building, the Negroes squat in miserable hovels, and if you wake in the silent hours before dawn, you hear them beating their voodoo drums faint and far away. It often seems to me that the drums pulse like a motif through all the life of Brazil; they beat them during the Carnival when they are happy, they beat them for the dead and for their religious rites. In the Municipal Market where I shop twice a week there is an old witch doctor who has every sort of voodoo charm and symbol for sale in his dank stall. I saw cloven hooves there hanging from the rafters, and goats' horns, and forked sticks and pointing fingers called Pigas here; in fact everything that has been used for devil-worship since time began. I was afraid to go into his stall as he is such an unpleasant looking old Negro but I ventured into another booth where a merry Portuguese sells the same assortment of esoteric merchandise with a startling addition of fresh fruit. 'Senhora,' he said to me, 'if you want to make a potion I can sell you herbs, and if you want to make Macumba, which I doubt, I can sell you charms; but perhaps you would just rather buy my strawberries?' If you fire a servant he or she is as likely as not to come back and 'make Macumba' on your doorstep. Last night at a cocktail party most of the Naval Mission were in gales of laughter over the sad tale of one of the aviator captains. He had fired his chauffeur and the day after they parted company, when he entered the garage, he found a chicken leg and a dilapidated looking flower pot hanging from the back of his car. Now he is hoodooed for sure!

"We have a cook and a maid and it sounds like living in the lap of luxury, but actually they are not nearly as efficient as one would expect them to be at home. When we had a cocktail party the other day for 90 people we had to get two waiters in to help serve, and the cook sulked all day in the kitchen because the girls and I elected to make most of the relishes ourselves. She would not help us with any of them because she said that it was the caterer's job, and that ladies in Brazil always leave everything to the caterer. I don't doubt it and, as you can imagine, the relishes at all of the parties taste exactly the same.

"Doanda and Jackie go to the American school here and are having their troubles learning Portuguese. For awhile I was afraid that they would never pick it up but now at last they seem to be making some headway. Life here has been quite a violent change from Carmel as their crowd is very grown-up and sophisticated. Doanda celebrated her birthday last month with a buffet supper for 22 and all the little girls came in evening dress and it was terrific . . . It certainly is a far cry from her party last year which was a weeny roast on the beach . . . By the time we leave here their thinking should certainly be along international lines. They meet all the embassy children at school. Jacky asked a little boy to Doanda's party and when I met him I was surprised to discover that he was Chinese. It had not occurred to Jackie to even mention it! Perhaps there is a lesson there for all of us to learn.

"The Brazilians entertain beautifully, on quite a magnificent scale, and it is all a far cry from little, old Carmel, but the girls and I get terribly homesick for it just the same. Secretly I think we are all simply existing until we can come home, although I suppose that until things settle down a little in the States this is about the most comfortable place that we could possibly be in."

Opening Night of Festival Gives Justification for Pilgrimage

BY GLENN CLAIRMONTE

Last monday evening the great Carmel tradition was revived with the opening of the Ninth Bach Festival. At eight o'clock the whole community assembled in the courtyard of Sunset School to hear the heralding trombones and to do honor to the composer who spent his life exerting his talents "to the glory of God." In the still evening the throng moved slowly to the auditorium after this introduction, and there they were exposed to an outstanding production. Bach's own devotion was communicated even to the intensely modern audience, so beautifully arrayed and so conscious of the social event of the year—for it would have been impossible to share in Gastone Usigli's smooth presentation and remain completely pagan.

The program was varied and, far from proving to be the musician's music that the public sometimes fears of Bach, it gave out a joyousness that Bach's deep roots in Christian faith and his natural brilliance must have meant to him. It would have been hard to hear this without realizing the depths of happiness that such a composer must have experienced in expressing himself in these terms—and certainly Usigli's direction did justice to the eighteenth century master. It is interesting that his fame should have this living touch with people of such a different age than his own, and I believe that this performance alone would have vindicated all the suffering he endured in the name of his art.

In the Overture No. 2, B Minor, Doriot Anthony, the flutist, distinguished and endeared herself to the audience. In the Cantata, Russell Horton, Tenor, and the Concert Mistress, Doris Ballard, gave a deeply moving interpretation. The really heart-warming part of the program was the Brandenburg Concerto No. 2 when Doris Ballard, violin, Doriot Anthony, flute, George Houle, oboe, and Franklin Sabin, clarinet, gave what is perhaps the finest entertainment possible to find anywhere in the world. Of course the Concerto C Major, in which Lillian Steuber and Ralph Linsley were the duo-pianists, was a favorite with the discriminating audience, and the applause testified to their appreciation. The closing number was the Magnificat, for the five visiting soloists, Alice Mock, Ruth Terry, Russell Horton, Desire Liget and Margaret Ries, the great local chorus an the orchestra. Here the full value of Usigli's direction was evident, and there is no other word than the frequently echoed "Magnificent!" to explain the effect upon the listeners. Marvelous it surely is that Usigli has been able to achieve such results, considering the limited time he had to train and co-ordinate the more than one hundred artists.

For the many who were drawn to Carmel from various parts of the country by the fame of the Bach Festival, there was full justification for their pilgrimage.

Back From Concert Engagement

Rachel Morton returned early this week from Long Beach, where she gave two highly successful lieder concerts on July 15 and 22. In reviewing the first in the Long Beach Press-Telegram, Herbert Wormser said, "She provided one of the most interesting recitals heard in Long Beach this year. The singer disclosed a voice of considerable richness and power, with excellent production and accurate intonaton. She has just the right intenseness for lieder, conveying the mystic-melancholy of Schumann, the down-to-earthness of Brahms, and the whimsical daydreaming of Schubert. Outstanding was her widely variegated moods, her delivery of pianissimo passages which she sang delicately and with good results in matters of phrasing. Lieder, as handled by Miss Morton, is an alluring medium of expression."

Have You Read . . . ?

BY ELISE DECELLES BEATON

Americans who are interested in the reactions of the French people to the events of the ten years preceding the Second World War will find a fascinating field for study in "Suites Francaises", published in New York in 1945 by Brentano's, with "Copyright under the Articles of the Copyright Convention of the Pan-American Republics and the United States." This important collection of articles and essays fills two volumnes, the first of which is the subject of this review. These are contributions which appeared from 1934-1940 in the famous Paris newspaper Figaro.

The editor, Robert Tenger, devotes most of the preface to a history of the Figaro, a paper which is more than a hundred years old, published first as a weekly, then as a daily. The Figaro has had a unique place in the French press and also in the press of the world. The editor says that more than any other journal it justifies this observation of the author of the article in the Encyclopedia Britannica: "In France, journalism is literature, and literature is journalism. Some of the greatest men of letters in France have been formed by the press; and the greatest literary critics have contributed to it." From the beginning of this century most of the well known writers of France have contributed to the Figaro. In 1934 when it became the property of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Cotnareanu, it resumed its traditional aspect: "in the literary, musical and artistic domains it became again the mirror of the intellectual life of the country; in the domain of domestic politics it again showed itself liberal; in that of foreign politics, it denounced the German peril and became, in order to prepare for it, the champion of the France-British entente".

In June 1940, the Figaro was established in the so-called "free zone" of France, where it appeared under the direction of Pierre Brissen up to the day of the total occupation of France by the Nazis. It became silent for two years "rather than betray each day the truth and confidance of its readers." It reappeared in Paris in 1944 with the liberation of Paris.

Mr. Leon Cotnareanu was able to compile this collection through the courtesy of the Public Library of New York, which put at his disposition its collection and allowed him to copy the texts.

The first volume is divided into four chapters: I.—Against the Forces of Evil. (1935-January 1940); II.—Concerning Ideas and Places. (1934-February 1940); III.—History has become our Daily Bread. (1934-April 1940'; IV.—Writers of Belles-Lettres of Former Times. (1934 February 1940).

The articles in the first chapter deal with various phases of religious conflict in Europe, the German menance, nationalism, race, the fate of conquered peoples. The authors are well known in the United States; Franceis Mauriac, Georges Goyau, Lucein Remier, Paul Claudel, the pastor Boegner, Le Cour Grandmaisen, Georges Duhamel, and Jacques Maritain. The last article, by Georges Duhamel, January 30, 1940, reports the sad change that had taken possession of German scientists two years before. The French scientist, Professor Allorge, had been present at a meeting of the German Oetanical Society in the city of Darmstadt. The visits of foreign scientists to such meetings ought to confirm science in its general human quality, in its character higher than a merely national plane. At this meeting at Dermstadt, Professor Allorge was amazed when he heard the German savant who was presiding, cry out in conclusion, after expressing best wishes for hearty collaboration, an extravagant eulogy of Hitler, in the name of German scientists, giving him all glory for the development of the new conception of the State and of the world, starting with the biological knowledge of nature. This harangue was greeted with the cry "Heil Hitler!" There were two possible hypotheses, either the

A FOLLOWER

The shorn sheep will be always shorn,
Close folded for the cutting tool,
It seems that only for his wool,
The silly creature has been born.

No way too strait, no rise too steep;
When shepherd pipes he will be led,
Meekly, content if he be fed,
A sheep, it seems, is just a sheep.

Dull-eyed, revolving with his cud
No bleating of revolt and plot,
He does not butt against his lot,
So long as he can browse and brood.

THE OLDEST POETRY OF EARTH

There is a poetry that does not scan,
A poetry the most unschooled can read.
It does not preach a stern, didactic creed,
It does not even take account of man.
It draws its life from earth and sun and rain,
And writes its lyric on the passing hours.
It is the poetry of trees and flowers,
Spreading its beauty on the edge of pain.

Its message changes with the season's turn,
And there is not one fixed, immortal line,
But it intoxicates like heady wine
That bubbles from an ever-flowing urn.
A child may pin its song upon her breast,
A bird may use its verse for his new nest.

ALICE JOSEPHINE WYATT

MT. TABOR
(Jebel et Tur)

The Galileans, the Samarians, the Peraeans
Walked the plain of Esdraelon,
Climbed the mountain, Tabor,
To gather the Styrax blossoms
Yellow-white in the sun;
They found the moon-wined rose
Moth-winged to the hand's touch—
They saw the lynx eyes, the jewelled snake,
They heard the wild boar
Stamping the walnut and pistacia leaves . . .
. . . "This is holy ground," they said,
"Holy, holy!" and the wind swept their voices
Up the blue summer-sea of sky.
"We have seen the Christ-eyes
Shining the mountain path
Holy, holy!"

Days Before Yesterday

BY DOROTHY C. RIECK

Now that the frenetic drive of the Centennial has retreated into the realm of days before yesterday, little echoes of the aftermath begin to be heard. One of these orphan voices sighs with regret. Regret over the Passing-of-the-Beards, those lusty reincarnations of our thoroughly masculine, and often terrifying, grandsires.

Where did those magnificent brushes all go, in the twich of a clock minute-hand? Where now the hirsute facades that gave such an authoritative atmosphere to the revival of the olden, golden days? Gone. Erased mysteriously overnight by Time, who wished to write Today's history on the black-board. What a rueful shame to have those precious hairs ignominiously scraped away. I, for one, mourn the exit of every rampant red, white and black one, for if ever there was a dynamic prank executed by the Peters-and-Pauls of the Peninsula, for Centennial "color", it was the flaunting of those elegant whiskers.

A stroll up Ocean Avenue is just putting one foot in front of the other now, as far as I am concerned. No thrill of expectation awaits me, no bearded giant approaches . . . no sign of a spectacular red brush (visible a block away) as of yore . . . no swoon of appreciation today, over the sophisticate gleam of a well groomed Spanish goatee. Ah me! Instead, I behold on every street corner the homely, everyday faces of the village squires, sans drapery, chaste in their infantile smoothness.

The women are back to normal again, running their homes and the town. Many a wife's breakfast table demands are now blantly stated to the pink-cheeked Man-of-the-House, whereas only yesterday, her voice was timid and subdued before the Bearded Presence. Children no longer cowed by father's bristling jowls stick out their tongues, and run riot in misbehavior. Ladies dare to rise up and speak out in meetin', on equal terms with the baby-faced village savants.

My Adorable men, why diid you flee for the scissors on the stroke of midnight, July seventh, like Cinderellamen scuttling back to the ashes of anonimity? Why didn't you keep your brave beards and moustaches? They were very becoming, they gave you individuality, they made men of you, in your souls. Many reasonable arguments can be broadcast in favor of sporting these handsome badges of Ursus.

First of all, the wearing of a beard is a terrific boost to a man's Ego. Whiskers have the faculty of making him feel delightfully male, which is a splendid thing. Facial filaments, daringly displayed, create an aura of power, strength, and dependability for the wearer. It is this spur to the inner self, this knowing that he is completely masculine, that brings out the fine, granite qualities of a man.

La, indeed! A flowing beard does much for a Sahib's conscious self, . . . not to mention what it does to his subconscious, that watchdog of the personality that never sleeps. While a man serenely walks the streets, as bare-faced as a baby, his subconscious is screaming, "I am a MAN!" The upshot of his conflict between actual appearance and his inner demands makes an hombre fretful, mean, and coyote-ish. Let this smooth-jawed one grow a set of whiskers from the eyebrows to Adam's apple, and presto! . . . he is wonderful!

An imposing faceful of hair, me lads, is the one thing left to you, in your precious masculine world that the ladies don't want to copy. They have aped your clothes and sports, your smoking, drinking, and swearing, but, by the Lord Harry . . . a beard is yours. Take this privilege of production, cherish it, use it, be proud and strong in the possession of it. Furthermore, epidermal decoration is becoming to most men. (Yes, honest.) There are so many styles you can always find one to enhance your own beloved physiognomy. Choose a cut to accent your best features, or hide your poor ones. A neat mousache is a godsend to German savants were obliged, against their convictions, to decorate with the title of bioligist a man famous for the mediocrity of his culture, or they were willingly and gladly addressing these huge flatteries to their political patron. The thought that the Hitler idea could lead astray even men who had dedicated themselves to the service of pure knowledge, and could transform them into blind and servile vassals was not only ridiculous, but most depressing. Duhamel felt that the peoples of the Occident were not at all resigned to despair.

The second chapter deals with the ideas of liberty and patriotism from the French point of view. There are also articles interpreting various phases of life in the United States, Canada, Rome, Singapore and Pekin. The authors mentioned above also contributed articles to this chapter, as well as others, including Jean Giraudeux and Celette, whose "How I Discovered America" is a sparkling piece of writing, witty and original. Her visit to New York was anything but commonplace.

French reactions to vital world events of the thirties make the third chapter fascinating reading. The title of the chapter is taken from that of an article contributed by Leon-Paul (July 8, 1939), "History has become Our Daily Bread."

The final chapter contains articles about such famous names as Victor Hugo, Racine, Mallarme, Renan and Marcel Proust, who had been a contributer to the Figaro for many years. Hitherto unpublished notes and letters add interest. Guy de Pourtales gives a tribute to Katherine Mansfield, after visiting the mountain home in Montana where she spent the last year of her life. Andre Maurois tells about his visit to Kipling in Sussex, in the garden where Kipling conceived the idea of Puck. When Maurois asked him how he could imagine with such truth the conversations of a Roman centurion with his men, Kipling replied, "That was not very difficult. I simply remembered conversations which I had heard in India, between other soldiers, guarding another frontier. Man scarcely changes . . . Machines have changed, not feelings. The ideas of a high Roman official, a proconsul in some province, are very much like those of a vicroy of India or of a governor of Bombay." He stopped a minute. then said, "The people of our time believe sometimes that they have all changed—that hierarchies and duties are no longer the same. Jehovah charges himself very quickly with calling them back to order and modesty.—God is great!" Then he spoke of Germany. "Remember" he said, "you also, do not forget—'

An article about Marcel Proust contains unpublished fragments of his work, marking the twentieth anniversary of his winning of the Prix Goncourt, which brought him sudden glory. Here are two notes: "The variety, the difference, which we seek in vain in love, in travel, music offers to us." "Music—the world which is for us the ultraviolet which we percieve only by the ear." There is a touching essay "In Memory of Alain Fournier". In speaking of the death of the young poet in the first days of World War I, Guermantes says, "Come, there are no useless sacrifices. The memory and the dream are stronger than violence. They defy oblivion, and, like souls, they survive eternally."

This first volume of Suites Francaises gives modern French ideas in a perspective which enables the reader to gain an insight into the viewpoint of French journalists during the years just before the fall of France.

DOUGLAS SCHOOL

Approximately $500 damage to one of the buildings at Douglas School was caused on July 19, when hot soot from an oil stove which was being cleaned fell on the roof and started a fire. Volunteers had the fire under control by the time the fire suppression crew from the State Division of Forestry arrived on the scene. Most of the damage was from smoke and water.

Bach Table In Reading Room

Reflecting the spirit of Bach Festival Week, the staff at the Harrison Memorial Library have arranged a Bach table in the reading room.

Collected on the table are a group of books on Bach and his music, including biographies by Schweitzer, C. S. Terry, and C. F. Abdy Williams; Madeleine Goss' Deep Flowering Brook; The Little Chronicle of Magdelena Bach by E. Meynell; Elbert Hubbard's Little Journeys to the Homes of Great Musicians; Bach's Orchestra, C. S. Business Association Votes Donation To Bach Festival

As a gesture of appreciation, the Carmel Business Association voted to donate $25.00 to the Bach Festival at its dinner meeting at La Ribera last week.

"It is a great benefit to the community," Corum Jackson told the membership. "The amount of the donation is not important, but at least it shows Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous that we appreciate their work in putting on the Festival."

Other business of the meeting was the acceptance of a new consitution. Speaker for the evening was Harry D. Byers, district manager of National Federation of Small Businesses, Inc. About 45 of the 110 members of the Business Association were present.

with Betty Helvenston

From Fernando Naronha or Rio de Janeiro to Carmel! . . . Skillful, fresh, decisive photography by MORLEY BAER. This week I saw photography books of pictures he took in Rio and on a strange, crazy, little island in the South Atlantic—Fernando Naronha. The photographs are terrific—combining art and clarity in a particularly revealing style. The books are the perfect way to preserve the photographs you'll want MORLEY BAER to take of you and your Carmel home and garden—no pasting or trouble—simple, unadorned — practical — impressive for presensation brochures also! But whether or not you are interested in having any pictures made at this time, you are cordially invited to visit MORLEY BAER'S headquarters, 6th near Dolores—not just another commercial shop but an attractive gallery designed to display his unusual photographs. . . . You'll be a MORLEY BAER fan too!

Drink with champions! . . . Everyone has been asking about the stunning highball glasses created for DEREK RAYNE by Irene Cartlidge, San Francisco artist, well known at horseshows and for her illustration of books about dogs. Each glass handpainted with the likeness of a thoroughbred race horse, polo pony or blue ribbon dog. No two are alike. You may purchase them individually or in sets. Each one a work of art. Add interest and zest to your leisure hours with these glasses from the DEREK RAYNE Shop for Men, on Ocean.

You'll go for a sale! . . . Won't you now? When it's a sale at MAXINE'S, on Dolores! MAXINE'S has such smart, simple, perfect-for-Carmel fashions at prices that are always moderate. So, a sale means real bargains in just the clothes you've been wanting. The clearance will include: Coats—tweeds and fleeces—a selection of colors and styles; Dresses; Shorts; Slack Suits — raw silk — practical and so lovely; Suits and Toppers—I saw one black and white check combination that particularly caught my eye. You can wear these clothes for the rest of the summer and on through the fall and winter. You won't want to miss MAXINE'S clearance—starting today!

It's a wonder! . . . There are many wonders in the world—The Grand Canyon, The Pyramids, The Painted Desert, The Taj Mahal, Yellowstone, Yosemite. But so few wonderful places like The Stork Club, The Top of The Mark, SADE'S in Carmel. People talk about SADE'S all over the world—especially in other famous night spots and cocktail lounges . . . Overheard at The 21:

"When I got to Carmel I found her sitting in SADE'S drinking a daiquiri."

"Good old SADE'S!"

"You know SADE'S?"

"Sure, everyone who gets around knows SADE'S."

So—drop in at SADE'S where East is East and West is West and EVER the twain shall meet!

Things like this don't "just happen"! . . . It is not accident or luck that VINING'S—the oldest meat market on the Peninsula—has a fine reputation. Quality and painstaking care made VINING'S the market you count on for the choicest meats. The storage vault where meats are properly aged—I inspected it and was most impressed—poor meat will not age under any conditions, you know, so here is another proof that VINING'S offers you only the best. Watch for new, specially built display cases for the most efficient handling and display of meat. During the war VINING'S gave you the finest meat available. Now they can again live up to the old quality standards. Floyd Smith now owns and manages the Carmel market, on Dolores, and the Monterey VINING'S on Alvarado. Your accounts are good at both. The business that has been built on confidence — VINING'S — where quality is a tradition of long-standing.

The Mad Hatter had nothing on me! . . . I'm simply mad about the new, looking-to-fall hats at the CINDERELLA SHOP, on Ocean! Definitely not hats to "throw in the ring"—you won't lend one to your best friend—too precious! . . . Milgrim models . . . A small, beguiling sailor—coffee-cream brown with luscious aqua feathers shading to brown again. A Kelly green felt—gold and rhinestone beading on the draped, high crown. Slashed designs on a violet felt pillbox. Autumn blacks—over-one-eye teasers or the newest, dramatic effect—pulled down at one side in back—up and off the face in front—draped with rich black velvet! . . . Knox . . . Beloved, more conservative . . . Polk bonnets,—sailors, pillboxes, brims. Russet, subtle brown shades. Colors. Royal blue, green or wine with a deep rolled brim—sits center back—the fall look. Knox can be dressier, too—a brown pillbox with gleaming satin trim . . . Love those hats!

Make the most of being a Californian! . . . The DISCOVERY SHOP, on Dolores, makes outdoor-living even better! . . . Portable barbecues — metal — easily moved. One has top warming oven, pull-out cutting board, bins, set-in pottery crocks. Another—side warming oven, built-in cutting board, removable grill, large carrying space, aluminum accessories—huge fork, spoon, spatula, covered serving platter . . . An outdoor bar in natural wood—plenty of drawer, shelf and cabinet room — smart, distinctive . . . Bring Nature's beauty inside—wood-based floor or table lamps—all the beauty of the grain—handcarved and finished. A variety of designs in bases and shades . . . The DISCOVERY SHOP.

A Craftsmen's Mart for Carmel! . . . Where craftsmen will find a sales outlet, supplies, encouragement and criticism. Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Stetson's new CARMEL ART SHOP, located upstairs in the 7 Arts Court, Lincoln and Ocean, has set out to re-establish some of the old Carmel traditions, to raise the standard of Carmel crafts and, through a jury system, to select the best of each craft for sale at logical prices. Already on display are the wares of six potters—skillful scraffito work and many unusual glazes, the finest in weaving, photography, John Catlin berets, Corde bags, plastic and reversible aprons . . . Besides a superior line of art materials, the CARMEL ART SHOP will conduct a weekly shopping service to San Francisco to supply the special needs of artists. Furniture refinished or redecorated—and prompt and efficient picture framing and matting service.

Sunday morning breakfast! . . . The leisurely, happy, gossipy meal when you get caught up on all the week's events and lazily look forward to the days to come. A good time, in the best sense of the expression, and doubly so when you breakfast of a Sunday in the famous Patio Room of CASA MUNRAS HOTEL AND COTTAGES, in Monterey . . . Yes! The Patio Room is now open to the public Sunday mornings! For some other meals, also . . . Of course, CASA MUNRAS is the place to go any time of day when you're in the mood for good food and a good time!

For feminine sophisticates from high school age to three score and ten! . . . Marie Laurencin miniatures at the H. L. FRISBIE FURNITURE STORE, on Dolores. "Twice in the recorded history of the arts has there appeared a woman who has expressed the quintessence of the feminine with no lingering trace of the masculine—one, a poet, Sappho, and the other a painter, Marie Laurencin." —from "The Significant Moderns" by C. J. Bulliet. The Marie Laurencin minatures at FRISBIE'S are beautifully framed for hanging singly or in groups. $2.50 and $3.50. One could not find a more charming gift for a young girl—or any woman. There is also a large framed picture, "Esther," signed by Marie Laurencin, herself. Mr. Frisbie has an assortment of Degas' ballet subjects framed as miniatures, too. $3.50.

Handsome accessories for your beauty and good grooming . . . at FORTIER'S DRUG STORE, on Ocean. . . . Beautifully-achieved compacts—small or large—square or round—real pre-war selection in metal, our first love—clear or colorful plastics—lilting symphonies of metal and plastic combined—tortoise shell. One intriguing roulette wheel design. Combs in good-looking holders for your purse. Cigarette cases. These are the items that prove your fastidious tastes . . . Men's and women's manicure sets in leather cases. Every bit of "equipment" for your manicure at hand. So convenient for traveling . . . Cleartex brushes. Hair brushes that enhance your dressing table and do more than that for your hair! Men's brush sets, too. Bath brushes, with removable handles . . . at FORTIER'S.

Hurry! Hurry! Hurry . . . Class forming now! The new free Camera Club, sponsored by THE BEAUX ARTS STUDIO AND CAMERA SHOP, Ocean at Lincoln, is enrolling its membership now. If you are interested in learning all about the technique of taking, developing, printing and enlarging photographs—now is your chance! Get in at the beginning and become an expert before you know it. Congenial club meetings are planned one evening each week. The same instruction and individual criticism for which you would ordinarily pay! THE BEAUX ARTS STUDIO AND CAMERA SHOP!

Service with a smile! . . . Remember that good old pre-war service? Well, that's just what you'll find at the CARMEL DRIVE-IN PRODUCE DEPARTMENT, Dolores at 8th. Under the new management of Manuel Pereira, formerly of Kip's, this promises to become the mecca of all housewives who like to be greeted with a smile at a bright, clean market with adequate and convenient parking space! Packages carried out to your car—what more could you ask? The CARMEL DRIVE-IN PRODUCE DEPARTMENT specializes in our own superb, picked-this-morning Carmel Valley fruits and Vegetables. Corn this week—just in season . . . . Courtesy convenience, high quality and fresh produce—oh, yes, and a delivery service, too! Try the CARMEL DRIVE-IN PRODUCE DEPARTMENT and see!

Mad about music! . . . We all are judging by the Bach Festival-inspired interest in books musical at Edith Griffin's VILLAGE BOOK BOOK SHOP, Ocean near Dolores. Works about Bach and other famous musicians—including fascinating children's books. Let's not neglect the history and appreciation of music: "Music in Western Civilization" by Paul Henry Lang; "Music Through the Ages" by Marion Bauer and Ethel Peyser; Kitty Barne's "Listening to the Orchestra"; "The Story of Musical Instruments" by H. W. Schwartz . . . Two grand new books of general interest: "Singing Waters"—fiction—by Ann Bridge—a provocative theme set in Albania; "Thus Far and No Farther"—by Rumer Godden—a non-fiction idol of the Himalayas—deeply perceptive.

Tomorrow's styles! . . . Here for you today at HOWARD'S in Monterey! HOWARD'S have always had smartness and quality at fair prices. Now they're a step ahead again. Fresh fashion trends in softly tailored little suits with masterly detail and subtle lines that are outrageously flattering. One suit in stunning Fire Engine Red—100% wool Pacific Crepe—interesting, new shoulder and sleeve treatment — gold buttons right up to the trim reveres—peplum effect at the back of the jacket—darted-front skirts that are hung as carefully as men's slacks. You'll feel equal to anything in this bright jewel of a suit! $46.50 . . . Or, take the one in Kelly Green—100% wool flannel—trapunta trimmed jacket—collarless—no buttons—closes with a self-belt at the front—simple, beautiful lines. As beguiling as the Emerald Isle, itself! $22.50 . . . You'll be well suited! . . . at HOWARD'S, on Alvarado St., in Monterey.

Lovely leather jewel cases! . . . Worthy of your most precious gems! JOYCE'S, on Ocean, has these handy, practical, beautiful cases in three sizes—7, 9, and 11 inches—in red, green or black leather with rich, velvet linings and removable trays. Safety locks make them indispensable, especially for traveling. Leather cigarette boxes and picture frames, also. If you love leather things, you'll be thrilled with these! . . . Don't forget the quaint, colorful, exquisitely-made, porcelain miniatures from China—horses, birds, vases. Tiny collectors items — bringing good luck and beauty. An intricately carved wooden salad set from China, too! . . . At JOYCE'S.

Thinking of you! . . . That's what SENAC'S were doing when they made those improvements. I had lunch there several times this week and it's so much more attractive, comfortable and convenient with the counter moved over to the wall and two rows of booths by the window. You have privacy in the booths and the waitresses don't have to rush around you any more when you're sitting at the counter . . . Of Course, SENAC'S food maintains a constant standard of real, honest goodness. Lunches are served with efficient dispatch if you're in a hurry and the dinners are wonderful. Open until 11:30 P.M. . . . SENAC'S, on the corner of Ocean and Mission.

Scoop! . . . Here's good news for ranchers or anyone who needs an extra-large freezer. The McDONALD REFRIGERATION CO. — over in their new building in Monterey, 560 Fremont, opposite Marsh's — really have something for you! Navy surplus—14 by 17 feet — brand new freezers that were never shipped to the South Pacific because the war ended! . . . More news— those 20-cubic-foot standing home freezers with 2 temperature compartments are ready for delivery. Do away with all bending and stooping. Wonderful! . . . If you need a new water heater, you couldn't do better than a 20-year-guaranteed Fowler—distributed through Kelvinator—30, 40, 50 gallons — porcelain-lined can't corrode or rust! Available for delivery now! . . . McDONALD'S also have a large line of commercial refrigerators for storeowners.

THE COUNTRY SHOP is having a sale! . . . That's really all I need to say, for "a word to the wise is sufficient" and all you wise women won't need to hear more! In fact you're probably half way there by now — knowing, as you do, the beautiful, smart things THE COUNTRY SHOP always has for you—and a sale! In case you're still with me though, I'll elaborate just a bit. Blouses—cottons, rayons, meshes, jerseys — prints, plaids, polka dots, plain colors—flattering necklines--quality lines . . . Dresses—silks, cottons, meshes, jerseys to carry you through the rest of this lovely post-war summer—gay or subtle colors, prints and plaids—one long-sleeved honey in pink, green, blue, aqua and lavender checked cotton. Playsuits and sun dresses, too . . . Suits—strictly tailored or softer styles — tiny, tiny checks, Glen plaids, solid colors—a few Charles Armour and Izod models! . . . at THE COUNTRY SHOP, on Ocean.

Come and get it! . . . Hot, buttered corn on the cob! Just as before the war, the LUIS WOLTER HACIENDA MARKET, just 3½ miles up the Carmel Valley, is serving cooked and buttered Carmel Valley corn—from 1 to 5 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday. One ear of corn free to each customer! . . . And the HACIENDA MARKET has native honey—from bees down at Big Sur—strained, golden, delicious. You may bring your own jars or purchase it already put up . . . . The HACIENDA MARKET where super-fresh, local fruits and vegetables are truly delicacies!

Fur Sale! . . . At LOUDA'S, on Lincoln! This is really news for it's not often that LOUDA'S have a sale! A stunning selection of coats to choose from—especially good for the young girl or for casual wear. A darling white lapin jacket. Striking grey Persian paw. Lovable, wearable mouton. Squirrel. You'll be sure to find something that's just made for you and, of course, we all know that LOUDA'S furs are the kind that make other women green with envy! . . . A fur Sale at LOUDA'S is a golden opportunity!

John Eagal Collects Newspapers, Yet Holds Four Hand-Written Stanzas His Collector's Prize

John Eagal sells Studebakers in Stockton, spends his week ends in Carmel and collects old newspapers for a hobby. But the prize of his collection is not a newspaper, but four stanzas of verse, hand-written on ruled stationery in only slightly faded ink.

The verses are headed "America", signed, "S. F. Smith", dated February, 1832. The whole is surrounded by an old-fashioned carved wooden frame and it is the original manuscript of the words to America.

The verses, beginning with the familiar "My Country 'Tis of Thee," were first read aloud as part of a Fourth of July sermon from the pulpit of the Park street Congregational Church, Boston, in 1832, by the pastor and composer, the Rev. S. F. Smith. Shortly, they were being sung to Europe's favorite air for national anthems, England's God Save the King, Germany's Heil Dir im Siegerkranz. Denmark, Sweden Norway and Switzerland had appropriate words to the beloved tune, and now America.

And how did John Eagal come into possession of the original verses for America?

Eagal's grandfather, T. D. Eagal, publisher of the Democratic Banner of Davenport, Iowa, swapped them with the Rev. Smith's son, S. F. Smith, Jr., in exchange for a poem the publisher had written in praise of the Rev. Smith. The swap was made in January 17, 1893, and the manuscript joined the scrapbook and old newspaper collection T. D. Eagal was then assembling. In that newspaper collection, which his grandson was showing us yesterday, is a clipping from a Boston paper in 1904, announcing that the old Park Street Congregational Church, where America was first read, in whose church yard had been burried Paul Revere, Benjamin Franklin, his wife and thirteen children, John Hancock, Samuel Adams and James Otis, was to be raised to make room for a modern apartment house.

The collection of old newspapers contains other interesting items. There is the January 4, 1800 issue of the Western County Gazette, announcing the death of George Washington; the Daily Davenport Democrat, April 15, 1865, bearing the headlines "A Most Horrible Event, President Lincoln and Sec'r Seward Murdered in Cold Blood." There is the September 7, 1901 issue of the Chicago Tribune with the story of the shooting of McKinley, and the September 14, 1901 issue of the Davenport Democrat, "The President is Dead."

Eagal himself has added to the collection the San Francisco Chronicle of August 4, 1923. "S. F. Pays Last Tribute" (Harding); the Stockton Record, April 12, 1945 "Roosevelt Dies".

Though Eagal's Studebaker agency is in Stockton, he spends increasingly more time in his home on the Point where Mrs. Eagal remains throughout the summer. Portly, with a face that takes easily to smiling, Eagal sports a pixy-pointed felt hat with a Robin Hood feather projecting for fifteen inches from the band, and derives considerable amusement from tourists who nudge each other to call attention to a "typical Carmel character." "Some have even asked me if I'd pose for a snap shot—which I did."

crease of staff labor in hours per week of 93 per cent.

"It is a fact that the library, which is such an important factor in the life of the village, is really doing double service it did in 1940 at only 20 per cent increase in tax income," was the closing argument in the report and one that largely influnced the council in granting the increase.

tary District plant near the river be seperated from the fire district. Highlands residents pay an annual county tax for the upkeep of the fire department, and receive no funds whatsoever for its support from the sanitary plant. Burning rubbish by the plant's workmen, residents say, has set off fires numerous times that required aid from the Highlands volunteer firemen, and each time the truck is sent out for such purpose, the fire district is set back about $100. Residents feel that fires at the Sanitary plant should come under the jurisdiction of either the State Division of Forestry or the City of Carmel itself. The latter suggestion has been made, inasmuch as Carmel derives the benefit of the sanitary district, while the Highlands community receives none. The Board of Supervisors took no action on the letter.
